The Dymally-Alatorre Bilingual Services Act, as well as the Americans with Disabilities (ADA), contain provisions regarding state departments' responsibilities for making their information and services available in formats accessible to hearing and visually impaired individuals. The California State Personnel Board has identified the following websites that provide American Sign Language Interpreters and/or Braille services:

- National Association for the Deaf
<http://www.nad.org>
- The Department of Social Services, Deaf Access Program
